GLOBAL SUPPLY CHAIN

A global supply chain is a complex network of businesses, services, organisations, people, activities, information, and resources that move a product from the raw material stage to the end consumer.

Key points about a global apparel supply chain:

1. Multiple locations:

Different stages of production, such as fabric manufacturing, garment cutting, and sewing, often occur in other countries, usually where labour costs are lower.

GLOBAL SUPPLY CHAIN

2. Complex network:

It involves various stakeholders including raw material suppliers, textile manufacturers, garment factories, distributors, retailers, and logistics providers.

3. International trade:

Goods are transported across borders multiple times throughout the production process.
