

ROLEX

“A CROWN FOR EVERY ACHIEVEMENT”

ABOUT THE BRAND

Rolex is an integrated and independent Swiss watch manufacturer headquartered in Geneva, renowned for its expertise and exceptional quality. Founded in 1905 by Hans Wilsdorf, the brand embodies a spirit of perpetual excellence, driving groundbreaking innovations such as the Oyster (1926), the world's first waterproof wristwatch, and the Perpetual rotor self-winding mechanism (1931). With most of its components designed, developed, and produced in-house, Rolex stands as a symbol of precision and craftsmanship. Beyond watchmaking, the company is deeply committed to supporting arts, culture, sport, exploration, and environmental preservation, while continuously striving to enhance both its products and its positive impact on society.

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

Mercedes Gleitze (1927) became the first British woman to swim the English Channel while wearing a Rolex Oyster. The watch emerged unscathed, proving Rolex's waterproof claims to the world.

Sir Malcolm Campbell Known as the “Speed King,” he wore a Rolex Oyster while breaking land-speed records. His feats linked Rolex with daring performance and engineering resilience.

Winston Churchill: Gifted a Rolex Datejust by Hans Wilsdorf, Churchill became one of the first global statesmen to wear Rolex. This cemented the brand's image as a watch fit for leaders

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

Dalai Lama (1940s - 50s): Known to own a Rolex Datejust representing Rolex's appeal across cultures and continents.

John F. Kennedy: Owned a Rolex Day-Date, the so-called "President's Watch." The association forever reinforced the model's status as a symbol of power and influence.

Martin Luther King Jr.: Photographed wearing a Rolex Datejust during the Civil Rights era. The image tied Rolex to courage, progress, and leadership in history.

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

Sir Edmund Hillary & Tenzing Norgay (1953): Wore Oyster Perpetuals on their historic Everest climb. Their achievement directly inspired the creation of the Rolex Explorer line.

Jacques Piccard & Don Walsh (1960): A Rolex Deep Sea Special was strapped to the Trieste submarine during the Mariana Trench expedition (10,916m). It returned intact, proving unmatched waterproofing and durability.

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

Sean Connery as James Bond (1962): In Dr. No and several early Bond films, Connery wore a Rolex Submariner 6538. This cinematic exposure forever linked Rolex with sophistication, danger, and the ultimate “gentleman spy” image.

Paul Newman: The actor and racing driver famously wore a Rolex Daytona, which later became known as the “Paul Newman Daytona.” This model is now one of the most coveted collector’s watches in the world.

Steve McQueen: Associated with the Explorer II ref. 1655, McQueen embodied Rolex’s rugged, adventurous spirit. Though he also wore a Heuer, Rolex became part of his Hollywood legacy.

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

Sylvester Stallone & Arnold Schwarzenegger: Both action stars frequently wore Rolex sports models on-screen and privately. Their choices tied Rolex to strength, dominance, and cinematic heroism.

Roger Federer: As a Rolex ambassador, Federer wore Datejust and Daytona watches during iconic Wimbledon trophy ceremonies. His legacy elevated Rolex's visibility in tennis to legendary status.

Tiger Woods: Partnered with Rolex as a global golf ambassador, reinforced the brand's association with precision, excellence, and dominance in sport.

HISTORICAL & CELEBRITY WEARERS

James Cameron (2012): Brought the Rolex Deepsea Challenge watch on his record-breaking Mariana Trench dive (10,908m). The watch's survival became proof of Rolex's extreme engineering capabilities.

Today, Rolex has become the go-to statement watch for celebrities — spotted on red carpets, in music videos, and even in street style, with stars like Tom Cruise, Selena Gomez, and Daniel Craig leading the way.

PARTNERSHIPS

TENNIS SPONSORSHIP

Rolex has a deep legacy in tennis, starting in 1978 as the Official Timekeeper of Wimbledon. Over the years, it expanded partnerships to the Australian Open (2007), Roland-Garros (2019), and the US Open (2021), making it the only watch brand linked with all four Grand Slam tournaments.

GOLF SPONSORSHIPS

Rolex strengthened ties with the Masters Tournament, Ryder Cup, and global champions like Phil Mickelson and Brooke Henderson. Golf coverage placed Rolex squarely in elite sporting culture.

PARTNERSHIPS

YACHTING PARTNERSHIPS

From the Sydney Hobart Yacht Race to America's Cup, Rolex became synonymous with luxury sailing and maritime precision.

MOTORSPORT SPONSORSHIPS

Rolex became title sponsor of the 24 Hours of Daytona and official timekeeper of Formula 1 since 2013. These partnerships cemented Rolex as the measure of endurance and speed.
